

A large, weathered rock formation, possibly a butte or mesa, dominates the foreground. The rock is light-colored and shows signs of erosion, with a jagged top and a base that has eroded into a series of vertical ridges and gullies. The background features a vast, flat desert landscape under a dramatic sky. The sun is low on the horizon, creating a warm, golden glow that illuminates the rock and the sky. The sky transitions from a deep blue at the top to a bright orange near the horizon, with scattered clouds catching the light. In the distance, other smaller rock formations are visible on the horizon.
